SEWER MATTER COMPROMISED.

After Much Legal Wrangling,
the Rival Interests Get Together.

FIND HAPPY SOLUTION.

Another Special Meeting of the Council Called Off
Last Night.

The City Council, which met Friday night, began the consideration of a proposition from R. E. Cooper and W. T. Cooper to deed to the city their private sewer lines upon certain conditions, the council having annulled the grants made several years ago and ordered the sewerage taken out of Little River. The matter was made a special order for Monday night, at which time a long legal argument was entered into in which Jno. B. Russell and R. E.
Cooper spoke for the private sewer owners and Frank Rives and S. Y.
Trimble for the Hopkinsville Sewerage Co. Nothing was accomplished looking to a settlement of the troublesome question. The original proposition was withdrawn and the granttees asked for a further extension of time in order that they might ascertain the cost of a septic tank, as basis for an application for a franchise, or for a further proposition to the city. The council adjourned after agreeing to meet Wednesday night to hear the report. After a conference between the Sewers Committee and the grantees, Tuesday afternoon a meeting was held between the representatives of the rival sewers interests and a compromise effected, by which the Hopkinsville Sewerage Co. will handle all of the sewerage. There were about 20 users on the four private lines and these will of course all connect with the sanitary system, now that the owners of the lines have made terms.
The lines will remain in the streets
but will not be used, as the contention of the attorneys in the arguments was that the lines have become public property and cannot be removed or the interests transferred, after all grants have been withdrawn.

The compromise agreement is a most satisfactory solution for all and to none more than the members of the council.

M. W. OF A. NOTICE.

will meet in regular session tomorrow night at 7:30. All members are

BIG FARM SALES

Three Real Estate Deals Aggregate $78,000.

The Planters Bank and Trust Co. made another fine real estate sale
this week, selling the Hugh Hammock farm of 278 acres near Casky, at $60 an acre, to Stephen P. Mose-ley, of Trigg county. This is a splendently improved farm and was known a few years ago as the Winfree place.
The Planters Bank and Trust Co. has recently made two other still larger sales, the Stowe farm for $35,000 and the Kelly place for $27,000. Three deals alone amounted to $78,000, which speaks well for Christian county in a dull year and attests the fact that the real estate branch of this popular bank is in the hands of most capable men. Those with property to sell, or who want to buy either farm lands or town lots should give them an opportunity to show the fine line of bargains on their lists.

SATAN SANDERSON

"Who's Who" in the Story.

"SATAN" SANDERSON, the hero, dare-devil, quixotic friend and minister of the Gospel.

HUGH STIRES, prodigal and criminal.

JESSICA HOLME, the beautiful heroine, helpless in the rush of events and the principal sufferer in a case of mixed identity.

MRS. HALLORAN, the camp oracle.

DAVID STIRES, stern, yet forgiving, and at the last made happy by another's unhappiness.

THE BISHOP, the victim of a misunderstanding.

HALLELUJAH JONES, the religious fanatic on whose shoulders rests the whole weight of the story.

EMMET PRENDERGAST, the false friend, perjurer and thief.

THE SHERIFF, who is very much divided between duty and inclination.

"BIG" DEVLIN, who turns champion instead of prosecutor after the hero's race with death.

He rose to his feet, mechanically put on a coat that was lying on a chair—Hugh's coat, but he did not notice this—and bareheaded passed out to the street. The motor car stood there. He took his place in the forward seat and threw on the power.

Barking joyously, Rummy, the brown spaniel, out of the gate, but his master did not stop. The little creature pursued the moving car, made a frantic leap to gain his seat, but missed, and the huge armored wheel struck and buried him to the gutter.

Harry did not hear the squalor cry of pain. His hand was on the lever, pushing it over, over, to its last notch, and the great mechanism, responding with a leap, sped away, faster and faster, through the night.

Chapter 10

FIVE miles through the dark, under the broad, less, expectant stars. The car was on the broad curve now where the road bent to the bluff above the river to pass the skeleton railroad bridge. But Harry knew neither place nor time. He was conscious only of motion—swift, swallow-like, irresistible—this and the racing pictures in his brain stenciled on the blur of night that closed around him. These pictures came and went—the last revel of the saints when he was Satan Sanderson, Hugh sneering at his calling, Jessica facing him with unblinking eyes, Hallelujah Jones preaching on the street corner.

Something in Harry's brain seemed to snap. A tiny shutter, like that of a camera, fell down. His hands dropped from the steering wheel, and, availing in his seat, he began to sing in a voice made loud and uneven by the speed of the car:

"Palm of victory!
Crowns of glory!
Palm of victory I shall wear!"

He sang but the three lines, for suddenly the car left the road, the inflated tires rebounded from the steel

The forward seat caught an iron signal post.

a rocket behind it, plunged heavily over the rim of the bluff into the river. A moment later the deep black waters of "the hole" had closed above the mass of sentient steel. The swift current had smoothed away every trace of the strange monster it had engulfed, and there by the side of the track, huddled against the broken signal post, his clothing plastered with mud and rain, motionless, lay Harry Sanderson.

A long, saturating peace, a deep and drenching darkness, had folded him. Dully at first, at length more insistently and sharply, a rhythmic pulsing sound began to annoy the eardrums. K-track, k-track—it grew louder; it grew more momentous and material; it irritated the calm that had wrapped the animate universe. As though from an immeasurable distance he heard a low, continuous roar and now and again through the roar nearer voices.

Harry awoke. His mind awoke, but his eyes did not open at once, for the gentle swaying that cradled him was pleasant, and the muffled click and hum soothed him like opium. He opened his eyes. It was daylight. He was lying on dusty boards that rattled and vibrated beneath him, the floor of an empty freight car in motion. A small brown dog, an object, muddled and shivering morsel, was snuggled close to his side. It whined as if with joy to see his eyes opened, and its stubby tail beat the floor.

Harry turned his head. Two men in dingy garments were seated on the floor a little distance away thumbing a decrepit pack of cards over an empty box. He could see both side faces, one weather beaten and good humored, the other crafty—knights of the road. The sudden movement had sent a momentary twinge to his temple. He put up his hand. It touched a coarse handkerchief that had been bound tightly about it. The corner hung down. It was soiled and stiff with blood. What was he doing there? Where was he? Who was he?

It came to him with a start that he actually for the moment did not know who he was—that he had ridiculously slipped the leash of his identity. He smiled at his predicament. He would lie quietly for a few moments, and it would come. Of course it would come! Yet it did not come, though he lay many moments, the fingers of his mind fumbling for the latch of the closed door. He had waked perfectly well, all save the slight cut on his temple, and that was clearly superficial, a mere scratch. Not a touch of reality marred his soul. His mind was as clear and light as a lark's. Body and brain together felt as if they had never had a serious ache in the world. But all that had preceded his awakening was gone from him as completely as though it had had no existence.

Stealthily he rose to a sitting posture and, with a frown of homely perplexity, took a swift and silent inventory. He scanned his clothing. His coat was threadbare and, with mud, oil and coal dust, was in a more disreputable state. His wristbands were grimy, and one cufflink had been torn away. He had no hat.

He betthought himself of his pockets and went through them methodically one by one. They yielded several dollars in coin, a penknife and a tiny gold cross, but not a letter, not a scrap of paper, nothing served him. The gleam of a ring on his finger caught his eye. He rubbed away the dirt and carefully examined it, wondering if the stone was real. His hand was slightly cut and swollen, and the circlet would not come off, but by shifting it slightly he could see the white depression made by long wear. The setting was an odd one, formed of the twisted letters H. S. These naturally should be his initials, but there he stopped. He repeated to himself all the names he could think of, beginning with S, but they told him nothing.

He looked himself over again carefully, reflectively. He put out his hand and laid it on the spaniel's head.

Its rough tongue licked his fingers. It held up one fore paw mutely and lamely. He drew the feverish, dirty little creature into his lap and examined the limp member. It was broken.

"Poor little beggar!" said he under his breath. "So you've been knocked out too!" With his knife he cut a piece from the lining of his coat and with a splinter of wood from the floor he set leg tightly. The dog submitted without a whimper, and when he set it down it lay quietly beside him watching him with affectionate canine solicitude.

"I wonder who we are, you and I?" muttered Harry Sanderson whimsically. "I wonder!"

The players looked around. One of them nodded approvingly. "Right as a rivet!" he said. "I made a pretty good job of that cut of yours. Hurt you much?"

"No," said Harry. "I'm obliged to you for the attention."

"Foolish to walk on a railroad track," the other went on. "By your looks you've been on the road long enough to know better. We stopped to tank there, and we picked you up, and your four legged mate. Must have been a bit squiffy, eh?"

He winked and took a flask from his pocket. "Have a hair of the dog that bit you?" he said. Harry took the flask and, wiping the top on his sleeve, uncorked it. Some-thing in the penetrating odor of the contents seemed to cleave through far mental wastes to an intimate, though mysterious, goal. He put it to his lips and drank thirstily. As the burning liquid scorched his throat a recrudescence of old impulses surged up through the crust of more modern usage. The Harry Sanderson of the new, remorseful, temperate life, of chastened impulses, of rote and reformed habit—the rector of St. James—had been lost on that wild night ride. The man who had awakened in the freight car was the Satan Sanderson of four years before.

He drank thirstily.

Chapter 11

SINCE that tragical wedding day at the white house in the aspen Jessica had passed through a confusion of experiences. She had always lived much in herself, and to her natural reserve her blindness had added. As a result her knowledge both of herself and of life had been superficial. The first bitter shock of her catastrophe seemed to burn up in her the very capacity for further poignant suffering, and she went through the motions of life apathetically.

Change of scene and the declining health of David Stires occupied fortunately much of her waking thoughts.

After the first few months of travel he failed steadily. His cirrheic acid moods were forgotten, his harsh tempers put aside. Hour after hour he lay in his chair, gazing out from the wide sun parlor of the sanitarium on the crest of Smoky mountain, whither their journeying had finally brought them. He had never spoken of Hugh.

In time her deeper pain had dulled, and her imagination, naturally so importunate, had begun to seize upon her surroundings. In the summer season the sanitarium had few guests, and for this she was thankful. Dr. Brent, its head, rallying her on her paleness, drove her out of doors with good natured severity, and when she was not with David Stires she walked or rode for hours at a time over the mountain trails. Breathing in the crisp air of altitude, her spirits grew more buoyant. She fed the squirrels, listened to the pert chirp of the whistling jacks and the whirring drum of the partridge or set on a hidden elevation which she named "The Knob," facing across the shallow valley to the south.

The knob overlooked a little grassy shelf a few hundred feet below, where stood a miner's cabin, with weed grown gravel heaps near by, in front of which a tree bore the legend painted roughly on a board, "The Little Paymaster's Cabin."

The Carroll family held a reunion near Fairview last Saturday, which was attended by about 100 descendants of the early settlers of that name, who are among the best people of the county. The day was most pleasantly spent in a shady lawn and a fine dinner was served. There was such an abundance of good things that not half of the dinner was eaten. The weather was ideal and nothing interfered with the pleasure and success of the reunion.

Resented Improper Remarks.

The report that Sergt. Brannham, of the Henderson company, made an unprovoked assault on Dr. Herbert Cunningham, of Cadiz, at Golden Pond, knocking him down with a gun, is denied by three eye-witnesses in a letter to the Henderson Journal. They say the young lady involved did not refuse to go with Brannham, but had been with him that day. Dr. Cunningham, they allege, had made improper remarks about her in the presence of a number of soldiers, and Brannham went to Cunningham and asked him about the remarks and struck him with his fist, when other soldiers interfered and took him away.

PE-RU-NA RECEIVES PRAISE

For Relieving Such Symptoms as Debility, Backache and Headache.

Mrs. Tressie Nelson, 603 North 4th Ave., Nashville, Tenn., writes: "As Peruna has done me a world of good I feel in duty bound to tell of it, in hopes that it may meet the eyes of some who have suffered as I did. For five years I really did not know what a perfectly well day was, and if I did not have headache, I had backache or a pain somewhere and really life was not worth the effort I made to keep going.

MRS. TRESSIE NELSON.

"A good friend advised me to use Peruna and I was glad to try anything, and I am very pleased to say that six bottles made a new woman of me and I have no more pains and life looks bright again."

There are a great many phases of women's ailments that require the assistance of the surgeon.

But by far the greatest number of such cases are amenable to correct medicinal treatment.

A vast multitude of women have been relieved from the ailments peculiar to their sex through the use of Peruna as prescribed by Dr. Hartman.

He receives many letters from all parts of the country relating to subjects of vital interest to womanhood.

Of the vast multitude of women Dr. Hartman treats annually, only a small per cent. of them consider it necessary to write to the Doctor at all.

While it is not affirmed that Peruna will relieve every case of this kind, it is certainly the part of wisdom for every woman so afflicted to give Peruna a fair trial.

Mrs. Joseph Lacelle, 124 Bronson St., Ottawa, East, Ontario, Canada, writes: "I suffered with backache and headache for over nine months and nothing relieved me until I took Peruna. This medicine is by far better than any other medicine for these troubles. A few bottles relieved me of my miserable, half-dead, half-alive condition."

"I am now in good health, have neither ache nor pain, nor have I had any for the past year. If every suffering woman would take Peruna, they would soon know its value and not be without it."

Mrs. M. Kline, 956 E. 38th St., S. E., Cleveland, Ohio, writes: "I am enjoying good health since taking your medicine. I had suffered for a good many years previous to taking Peruna, and ever since I can say that I do not know what headache or neuralgia is. I can most assuredly say that any body afflicted with either in any form can be cured by taking Peruna."

The residence of Ed Harris, col., on North Liberty street, caught on fire about three o'clock yesterday morning and the building and contents were damaged to the extent of about fifty or seventy-five dollars. The fire department was on hand in a very short time after the alarm was turned in and quickly put out the fire, which was rapidly gaining headway. The loss is covered by insurance.

The Cosmopolitan Shows, who are to furnish the attractions, have 20 big shows, free from any undesirable features. There are two excellent bands and four big free attractions every day. Imagine a wondrous amusement city traveling caravan style. A few years ago the idea would have been laughed at; but the fact is evident by the thousands of columns of newspaper mention all speaking in glowing terms of this mighty monarch of modern times, the more than millions of pleased patrons who have passed delightful hours of recreation at its high class shows. The show tents are all equipped in an excellent manner and the fronts are more attractive than the ordinary carnival companies. World's Greatest Show in Hopkinsville Today.

Ringling Brothers' circus, "the world's greatest," is billed to give two performances in Hopkinsville today. The band numbers 50 soloists. Mr. Sweet is the champion cornetist of ### America.

Ringling Brothers' circus numbers this season 1,250 men, women and children, 650 horses, 20 camels, 40 elephants, 12 acres of tents, 40 cages of animals and 85 65-foot railroad cars. The main tent is the largest ever built. In the vast arena are three rings, two stages, a quarter-mile race course and a spacious dome on and in which the various acts are given.

All the world contributes to this circus. It's universal character is indicated by the many nations represented among the performers. Even the Shah of Persia has contributed to the novelty of the bill by releasing from his court entertainers the wonderful Mirza Golem family of acrobats that they might make a tour of America under the Ringling banner. The Mikado of Japan, too, has permitted his imperial troupe of equilibrists to join the same ranks. The show goes from here to Nashville.

To Cut Plate Glass.
To cut a piece of plate glass it is thought a diamond cutter is necessary, but it is not. If the glass is not very thick it can be cut with a pair of scissors, a large pair being preferable. While cutting hold the glass beneath half a foot or more of water, and it can be cut any size desired. A second piece of glass has been cut out of a good sized pane in just this manner. The scissors do not have to be extra sharp.—Success.

SEA BATHING.

The Effects of Salt Air and Water on the Human Body.

There is a reason why parents have in all times and in all ages endeavored to give their children the benefit of sea air and sea bathing. An Italian physician, Gerosa, tells about it.

It is agreed, he says, that all living organisms began their first existence in salt water and that as a result the human body (and indeed every animal body) is largely made up of salt. If you taste your blood or your tears, which are the extract of blood, you will find that both are quite salt in flavor. More than this, however, every living being possesses within its body. In the cellular stage, all those strange marine organisms which we study so curiously in museums. And seeing, says Gerosa, that the amount of sea water contained in every body is equal to one-third of that body's weight, it is clear that in the infinitesimally rudimentary form all known marine life must be present in the blood. The result is that when we bathe in the sea or breathe the sea air, we replace the amount of essential salt which is constantly decreasing in the system and, all unconsciously to ourselves, weakening it. Salt water, says Gerosa, is really the main principle of life, since it is the first condition of existence which the living organisms knew. It is therefore always good for the body, whether it be elyated at the seaside or brought in bottles from the sea. In particular is it very valuable in the case of weakling children, and there is no bodily stimulant so lupurating to the very young as sea water.

THE VOODOO IN HAITI.

Human Sacrifices to the God of the Serpent.

There is ample proof that human beings have been offered as sacrifices to the god of the serpent in Haiti. A French archbishop of the island declares a visit made by one of the priests to a voodoo assembly. The man had disguised himself as a negro, and he was thus able to mingle undetected with the crowd in the obscurity outside the sacred circle. After the white cock and white goat had been slain and offered up and their blood had been sprinkled on the company a burly young negro came forward and prostrated himself before the priestess. Then, still kneeling, he made his prayer: "O mamam, I have a favor to ask of thee." "What is it, my son?" said the priestess encouragingly. "Will thou not give us, to complete the sacrifice, the goat without horns?" The priestess gave a sign of assent. The crowd roundabout separated, and there was revealed a child sitting with its feet bound. The French priest rushed away in search of assistance in preventing the unholy rite, but the authorities on whom he called were strangely slothful. When finally, on the day following, they arrived at the place of assembly, they found the gruesome remains of a sacrifice and a feast, among them the boiled skull of a child.—Martin Duna in Metropolitan Magazine.

When Men Hurry.

"Singular," said a man waiting for a train on an elevated railroad platform and looking down a street to where a hundred men and boys had gathered around two wagons that had come together in collision, "there are a hundred men standing around those two wagons, just standing there, gawping, apparently with nothing else to do and not in a bit of a hurry, but let any one of those men come up to the stairs to this platform when there is a train coming in and he'd rush and hurry and tear himself apart to catch that train and get glut if he missed it, though he knew very well that he'd be on another train here in a minute. Let him miss a train by a second and he thinks the world is coming to an end; let him see somebody holding a safe up the outside of a building and he will stop and waste half an hour. "How do you account for that?"—New York Sun.

Mme. de Struve's Wit.
Secretary Blaine had said of Mme. de Struve that she was the brightest woman he had ever met, and everybody who knew her agreed with this verdict. Her knowledge of English was remarkable, even for a Russian, and her sallies were famous. For instance, the day when Secretary Blaine was made head of the American diplomatic service his daughter, Miss Kate Bayard, said laughingly to a young secretary of legation, "Remember, I am now daughter of your chief" to which came, quick as a flash, the retort from Mme. de Struve's lips. "Oh, we all know that you are mistress-chieft?"—Army and Navy Life.

His Terms Varied.
"I give a little reception next Thursday evening, and I should like some music, but I don't care for anything but what would be the terms?" Thus a lady to a professional instrumentalist.
"Let I go here simply as a musician." was the reply, "and I'll select you and have a giggle life of it, but let I miss go so as a quiet and spend no whole evenings talking to you pack of fools I charge den guinea?"—London Graphic.

A Sure Thing.
She—Did father say anything about you being too young to marry?
Yes, but he said I'd age pretty rapidly after we were married and I found I had to marry him.—Illustrated Bits.

Do You Feel Chilly, Then Feverish and Ache all Over?

Feel Worm-out, Blue and Tired? Have You a Fresh Cold, With Frequent Hacking Cough? Sensation of Stiffness in the Chest or Back?

Don't let your case run into bronchitis, or some other obdurate and dangerous malady. The very best medicine to take in such a case is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Made without alcohol or dangerous drugs. It contains that rare combination of native medicinal roots that will drive a cough (from it, as it were), restore the circulation, assist the appetite and digestion, and consequently restore tone to the entire system. That is the reason people look happy once more after taking it—they feel like living, because their liver is active, the blood in their arteries is full of that life-giving, quality-rich, red blood. The blood in turn feeds the nerves.

Nervousness and neuritis are only the indication that the nerves are not fed on invigorating blood. This "Medical Discovery" of Dr. Pierce is nature's own restorer. It is the reason people look happy once more after taking it—they feel like living, because their liver is active, the blood in their arteries is full of that life-giving, quality-rich, red blood. The blood in turn feeds the nerves.

INFERNAL MACHINE

Methods of Russian Anarchists Adopted in Effort to Kill Sanford Hall.

Paducah, Ky., Sept. 28.—Detectives in charge of the night rider prosecutions in Western Kentucky and Assistant Postmaster E. E. Bell yesterday opened a suspicious package which was received at the Paducah postoffice two weeks ago addressed to Sanford Hall, the self-confessed night rider, and who turned informer on the band and is a star witness for the State.

The package was found to be an infernal machine of the most deadly variety, containing ten ounces of a gun-cotton mixture, besides dynamite and powder. It was a most ingenious contrivance, the "machine" being ten inches long, and provided with a new file to ignite the matches that were skillfully arranged on the interior.

The detectives who have the infernal machine in their possession say that had any person pulled off the lid before the package was rendered harmless by being soaked in water the explosion would have been sufficient to have blown him to atoms, besides wrecking the entire front of the Paducah customhouse. In fact, the detectives have no hesitancy in declaring that the purpose of the senders was—besides causing the death of "Informer" Sanford Hall—to destroy the Federal building, in which was held the trial of the Hollowell night rider case, pending the Federal court at Paducah.

The mysterious package has been under the constant surveillance of Postoffice Inspector Morgan Griswold since its receipt at the Paducah postoffice, and has been the cause of much investigation by officials of the Postoffice Department.

The detectives in charge of the case, while claiming to know the identity of the senders of the infernal machine, positively refuse to divulge the names of the parties suspected. They claim also to have other startling evidence of a plot hatched by the night rider organization.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Engagement Extraordinary—Phinney's United States Band, With Eight Opera Singers.

Frederick Phinney, the director of the great band bearing his name, has been selected, over all bands in the United States, to produce the music required in the great open-air musical and historical drama entitled "Philadelphia" which will be given in that city next week. Mr. Phinney will receive for his services $25,000 from the city, with a percentage of all receipts over a certain amount. He has been working on the production for five months, arranging all the details. The celebration will be the two hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the city of Philadelphia, and the entire city has joined in making it a great event. There will be evenings of pageantry, historical scenes reproduced, music of all the periods, educational and descriptive, with over one thousand costumed performers used. It will rival in magnitude the great Peace Jubilee, given some years ago at Boston. Mr. Phinney's next engagement will be the Texas State Fair, at Dallas, beginning on Oct. 17th. He will carry for this engagement 55 musicians, picked performers from the great body of musicians used at Philadelphia. There will also be Eight (8) Grand Opera Singers with the company. After leaving Philadelphia, this great organization will appear at Washington, Oct. 12th; Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 13th and 14th; Hopkinsville, Ky., Oct. 15th, and from this point they go direct to Dallas, Tex. Popular prices will prevail here; matinee prices 25c and 35c, night price 50c. Seats may be reserved for the night performance at 75c each, and will be on sale at Anderson & Fowler's. Those who buy tickets from members of the W. O. W. Lodge may have them reserved, by paying the difference. The idea is, first come first served, and at the very low prices of admission, we look for crowded houses at both performances.

MORE LAME DUCKS.

Two Republican Statesmen Caught With the Goods.

Washington, September 28.—Astounding revelations concerning several prominent workers in the Republican national organization have come to light, and as a result two or three more of the most prominent Taft workers are to be released from further connection with the campaign work.

TAFT'S MANAGER FIRST.

To-day it became generally known that A. I. Vorys, Taft's campaign manager, was disbarred from the practice of law during President Arthur's administration. Court records show that he was disbarred for irregularities in collecting a widow's pension money.

Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, is another who is, according to rumor, to suffer political decapitation in a short time. His affiliation with the trusts is not denied even by himself and it is stated that he will be asked to step down and out.
